Geographic Description

The New York Northwest LCO was located at 101-115 West 116th Street in the historic Harlem section of New York City. According to the February 2000 Tract Action Plan, there were 60 tracts, of which all were HTE. According to the 1990 PDB, there were 154,588 housing units. The LCO is responsible for two distinct neighborhoods, East Harlem (i.e. Spanish Harlem or El Barrio) and West Harlem (i.e. Black Harlem). While East Harlem used to be almost entirely Puerto Rican, it was also home to a rapidly growing Mexican community in addition to a significant, longstanding Dominican community. West Harlem's population included African American, African and Caribbean households, with a small but growing French African population.
