

- Biographical Statement -

Dr. Marcel Machill is the Bertelsmann Foundation's Director Media Policy. He is directing the project „Internet self-regulation“ and responsible for the foundation's media policy research and project management. Dr. Machill holds academic degrees from three countries: After studying journalism in Paris, France (M.A.) and media policy and media economics in Dortmund, Germany (Ph.D.), he spent two years as a McCloy Scholar in Cambridge, USA, at Harvard University. There, at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, he received a Masters Degree in Public Administration (MPA). Dr. Machill has published several books and articles on media policy and journalism culture. He served as an editor and consultant for Euronews-Television in Lyon, France, and for Radio France International in Paris. He also worked as a journalist for the Public Service Broadcasting in Germany (WDR, Deutsche Welle), for the German Television Studio in Washington, D.C., as well as for newspapers such as Die Zeit and Frankfurter Rundschau. Dr. Machill has been a research fellow at the „Laboratoire Communication et Politique“ of the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique in Paris and a lecturer in media policy and European journalism at various universities such as Dortmund, Düsseldorf and Münster (Germany).

Most important book publications:

- Frankreich Quotenreich. Nationale Medienpolitik und Europäische Kommunikationspolitik im Kontext nationaler Identität. Berlin: Vistas 1997. [France as Realm of Quotas. National Media Policy and European Communications Policy in the Context of National Identity]
- Journalistische Kultur. Rahmenbedingungen im internationalen Vergleich (ed.). Wiesbaden: Westdeutscher Verlag 1997. [Journalistic Culture. International Comparison of Settings for Journalism]
- Transatlantik. Transfer von Politik, Wirtschaft und Kultur (ed. with S. Lorenz). Wiesbaden: Westdeutscher Verlag 1999. [Transatlantic. Transfer of Politics, Economic and Culture]
- Protecting Our Children on the Internet. Towards a New Culture of Responsibility (ed. with J. Waltermann). Gütersloh: Bertelsmann Foundation Publishers 2000.