PRESIDENT'S ADVISORY
PANEL on Tax, New York 14482
ON FEDERAL TAX REFORM

June 8, 2005

Dear Panel. 2005 JUN 21 P 1: 54

IRS figuring taxes NO

that Tax YES with deductions for medical expenses and limited mortgage interest.

The IRS can't even answer questions accurately on their help lines. Forget about challenging their decisions. When I married, I filed with my husband under my new name. I kept getting letters that I hadn't paid my taxes. My letters and phone calls were for naught. They threatened to attach my bank accounts (non-existent under my maiden name); Told me to go to Social Security because my SS number was incorrect (wrong! Someone from the IRS transposed a number) and were determined that I hadn't paid.

I finally had to take all my records to an IRS office to get it straightened out. I was innocent and had to go through all this trouble & expense.

IRS doing my taxes? NO WAY.

One "gift" you could give us, is to let us mail our returns postage free. It adds insult to injury to have to go to the Post Office and pay extra postage in addition to paying taxes.
